

Privacy Policy

The Research Base

The Research Base Ltd is an international social research consultancy, based in the UK. This privacy policy explains how we use any personal information we collect about you.

What information do we collect about you?

We collect information about individuals when they consent to participating in surveys, focus groups and interviews that we run as part of our research projects; we may also collect publicly available contact information as part of occasional project-related stakeholder mapping exercises. We do not collect personal information through the website.

Any information gathered as part of primary research is retained for a period of 12 months after the end of the research project for which it was gathered, after which it is anonymised or deleted.

How will we use the information about you?

We use information collected through primary research to help us to answer research questions. Anonymised data may be shared with our clients; if we ever want to share identifying data, we will explicitly ask for and gain your consent before doing so. We will never share your data beyond the project team and the client who has commissioned the research.

Marketing

We will not send you any marketing communications.

Access to your information and correction

You have the right to request a copy of the information that we hold about you. If you would like a copy of some or all of your personal information, please email us at info@theresearchbase.com or write to us at The Research Base, 21 Regency Square, Brighton, BN1 2FH, United Kingdom.

We want to make sure that your personal information is accurate and up to date. You may ask us to correct or remove information that you believe to be inaccurate.
